Introducing the new look Kew Gardens Collection

Originally launched in 2013 the Kew Gardens Collection is our premium range of garden hand tools and garden accessories. For the 2022 season we have given the range a refreshed look with a new packaging designed around Botanical illustrations.

Answering the environmental packaging challenge

We have taken the opportunity to review the type of packaging we use for the range in order to reduce or remove entirely any unfriendly materials such as single use plastics, and to get rid of any surplus packaging altogether.

- We have removed all adhesive brand labels from the wooden handled digging, cultivating and hand tools and have replaced them with a smart new pad print that incorporates the recognisable logo of the Royal Botanic Gardens Kew
- Backing cards and swing tags are now produced from FSC certified materials
- We have changed the hangers for our swing tag from a synthetic nylon to a waxed cotton and have removed entirely a plastic branded badge that was part of the hanger.
- We have reduced the amount of plastic used in our secateurs packaging by changing from a full to a partial blister and all the blisters on our secateurs are now made from PET plastics.

We still have some work to do and we're working with our supply chain to address any outstanding issues. We're confident that the standards we have set for our Kew Gardens Collection can be rolled out across our wider range of Spear & Jackson garden tools.
